

The Dirtiest Blackhat Method Ever

This method is blackhat... VERY blackhat. So blackhat in fact that I felt bad about doing it – however, you definitely can make money with it, as I'm proof that it works. I made $647/three days with this before I stopped –twenty minutes of work to set this up, and I'm not joking. After the setup, it took five seconds daily... to check how much I had earned.

I am going to show you an exact method I used – you can expand this for any offer.

a) Pick a good offer that pays well per signup. In my case, I used Auto Insurance offer which pays $4/lead. (The offer is still online on cpalead.com)

b) Setup a Gmail Account. It is better that you use one that looks realistic, fake of course – something like FirstName.LastName98@gmail.com

c) Purchase a domain. For example, if you choose to promote the auto insurance offer, you might purchase autoinsuranceonline.com or insuranceauctions.com. Create an email address for it - jobs@yourrelateddomain.com and add it to your Gmail account (Setting _ Accounts). Set this new email as your main email in Gmail. Redirect the domain to your offer affiliate link.

d) Go to job sites, for example see below. Post something like:

Hello,

We are looking for writers for our Auto insurance website. You will need to create short (20 –25 word) write ups and Small product reviews. We will pay $0.01/word to start up, then increase if it goes well. You MUST be interested in insurance to take up the job.

Due to payment issues, we can only take writers that are based in the USA for now. Please send an email to YourNewGmailAcc@Gmail.com to apply if you fit the criteria.

Thank You,

List of job websites:

<http://getafreelancer.com/>

<http://www.elance.com>

<http://www.rentacoder.com>

I recommend the first one as it doesn't require anything to post, just a free account. Posts will go pending first, and then live after 1-2 days.

e) Go to the Gmail account you setup. Under settings, there will be a thing called Vacation auto responder. Write something like:

Hello,

Thank you for your interest. At the moment, we have received lots of interested parties, so are going through the applications. Please signup at our website below and take a look around, as that will make things quicker should we hire you.

www.autoinsuranceonline.com (for example – I believe this domain is still available).

Thank you,

Your (Fake) Name

Nearly every single person you reply to will signup. You will get a crazy amount of emails. I got more than 700 emails and almost all of those emails came within 5 days. USA, job hungry I only replied to around 100, and had almost all of them signup, netting me $640 in revenue after three days and a short while of work to setup the above steps.

If you use Online Writing Jobs, your only spend is the domain.

I strongly suggest you find a different offer, or not use Auto insurance on Online Writing Jobs as I have already done so. I did not promote at any other job website though, so there is a lot open for you to target.

Rewrite the email and your job ads (but make them similar to the ones above) to gain maximum success.

You can try this with any kind of pay per signup offer –USA ones tend to pay well. The good thing is that you are sending targeted visitors (only people that like insurance, for example) to the signup so there is a high chance a few of them will stay on giving you a good conversion rate.
